- Sec.III- ACKNOWLEDGEMENT OF PACTS

- Sec. III §A- Defining Pacts

- It is hereby agreed that the benefits, boons, payments, or exchange of goods, services, or other such favors, are offered in sequential order (hereby referred to as “pact” or “pacts”). By entering into this transfer, the signing parties understand and agree to provide the benefits, boons, payments, or exchange of goods, services, or other such favors outlined under the first pact, as described in Sec.III §B. The parties agree that, by entering into an additional pact or pacts outlined in this document, any previous pacts are considered to still be in effect, and any such benefits, boons, payments, or exchanges of goods, services, or other such favors rendered from previous pacts are still legally binding under the court of the Nine Hells of Baator. Both parties understand that if, at any point, one or both parties are found in breach of contract, as defined later in Sec. IV, the offending party or parties are to immediately, at the time of being found in breach of contract, make payment to the other party or parties as defined in Sec V. Agreement to enter the second and/or third pacts, as outlined later in Sec. III, is defined as either mutual written consent of both the promisor and promisee, as signified by signing of appropriate pact or pacts upon entering said pact or pacts.

○ Sec. III§B- The First Pact

■ Sec. III§B Article 1- Duties of the Promisee

- The promisee agrees to, upon signing this document, and moving forward in perpetuity, give claim and ownership of their relatives, and themselves material plane mortal soul to the promisor, with which the promisor may do as the promisor sees fit. Upon death, brain death, irreversible coma, or other such ending of normal functioning of the promisee, or relatives (hereby referred to “death”), the souls will immediately be sent to the promisor in the Nine Hells of Baator. The promisee, upon signing this document, revokes any and all claim to their, or their relatives, material plane mortal soul, and agrees not to interfere with the travel of their soul to the Nine Hells of Baator in any way, shape, or fashion, in case of death or the promisee will be found in breach of contract as outlined later in Sec. IV. The promisee also consents to the promisor’s use of telepathy, mind reading, or other such form of communication on the promisee, or relatives.

- Sec. IV- ACKNOWLEDGEMENT OF BREACH OF CONTRACT

- Sec. IV §A- Breach of Contract on the part of the Promisee

- Should the promisee, at any time after entering into this transfer and in perpetuity, through any action, inaction, spoken or unspoken word, thought, feeling, or other such gesture, interfere with the promisor claiming the material plan mortal soul of the promisee, or relative, the promisee, or relative, shall be found in breach of contract.
 - Should the promisee, or relative, at any time after entering into this transfer and in perpetuity, through any action, inaction, spoken or unspoken word, thought, feeling, or other such gesture, interfere with the promisor communicating with the promisee, or relative, by use of telepathy, mind reading, or other such form of communication the promisee, or relative, shall be found in breach of contract.
 - Should the promisee, at any time after entering into this transfer and in perpetuity, through any action, inaction, spoken or unspoken word, thought, feeling, or other such gesture, attempt to disclose any terms of the transfer to anyone aside from all involved signatories and/or their authorized adjudicators, executors or other such employed personnel to which power of signatory has been bestowed to disclose, shall be found in breach of contract.
 - Should the promisee, at any time after entering into this transfer and in perpetuity, through any action, inaction, spoken or unspoken word, thought, feeling, or other such gesture, enter a state of death as defined in Sec. III §B Article 1, the promisee shall be found in breach of contract.
 - Should the promisee, at any time after entering into this transfer and in perpetuity, through any action, inaction, spoken or unspoken word, thought, feeling, or other such gesture, attempt to remove the sigil of Bel, the promisee shall be found in breach of contract.

- Should the promisee, at any time after entering into the second pact and in perpetuity, through any action, inaction, spoken or unspoken word, thought, feeling, or other such gesture, use a material plan mortal soul in any way other than defined in Sec. III §C Article 1 the promisee shall be found in breach of contract.
 - Should the promisee, upon entering into the transfer and in perpetuity, take any direct action leading to the death of the promisor, the promisee shall be found in breach of contract.
- Sec IV §B- Breach of Contract on the part of the Promisor
 - Should the promisor, upon entering into the transfer, fail to return the material plane mortal soul, or heal any physical illnesses, ailments, maladies, or other such afflictions present in the body of the promisee at the time of entering into the transfer, of which the promisor would feasibly know or be made aware of upon entering into this transfer, the promisor shall be found in breach of contract.
 - Should the promisor, upon entering into the second pact, fail to provide the necromantic boon upon the promisee as outlined in Sec III §C Article 2, the promisor shall be found in breach of contract.
 - Should the promisor, at any time after entering into this transfer and in perpetuity, through any action, inaction, spoken or unspoken word, thought, feeling, or other such gesture, attempt to disclose any terms of the transfer to anyone aside from all involved signatories and/or their authorized adjudicators, executors or other such employed personnel to which power of signatory has been bestowed, the promisor shall be found in breach of contract.
- Sec. V- ACKNOWLEDGEMENT OF PAYMENT IN BREACH OF CONTRACT
 - Sec. V §A- Payment on the part of the Promisee
 - Should the promisee be found in breach of contract, as defined in Sec. IV §A, at any point after entering into the transfer and in perpetuity, the promisee agrees to forfeit their material plane mortal soul to the promisor. In addition, the promisee shall provide any and all boons, benefits, or any exchange of goods, services, or other such favors on the part of the promisee outlined in any and all pacts listed within the transfer, whether said pact or pacts have been entered into or not at the time of the promisee being found in breach of contract, to the promisor immediately upon the promisee being found in breach of contract. Any boons, benefits, or any exchange of goods, services, or other such favors on the part of the promisor are considered null and void upon the promisee being found in breach of contract.

- Sec. V §B- Payment on the part of the Promisor
 - Should the promisor be found in breach of contract, as defined in Sec. IV §B, any and all boons, benefits, or any exchange of goods, services, or other such favors on the part of the promisee shall be considered null and void in the event of the promisor being found in breach of contract.
